IN THE REALM OF THE FEMININE

(Copyrighted, June, 1916, by Beatriz Michelena.)

WHEN WE BEGIN to analyse the reasons for the popularity of any great screen star we will always find that, in one way or another, the magnetism of his or her personality is at the bottom of it. And here, my screen struck friend, is one direction in which any efforts for development will not be wasted, even though you never eventually succeed as a picture actress.

Personality is the larger half of the battle in any walk of life and it is something that can be built through the right sort of application.

My advice then is, DEVELOP PERSONALITY.

Probably you can best do this through the observance of a list of "don'ts."

I cannot think of every one of them all at once, but here are three or four of the more important:

DON'T encourage nor humor yourself in the habit of laziness.

DON'T be untidy in your personal appearance.

DON'T think it smart nor a mark of genius to develop a listless or bored attitude toward your associates.

DON'T be "loud" in either speech, dress or general conduct.

DON'T forget that your backbone was made to give strength and poise to your body—don't let it sag.

A few further words might not be amiss in an elaboration upon this last "don't." I think it almost criminal that so many girls of this day absolutely neglect their carriage. They droop and sag, half way cave in and tumble limply together all at the same time. It is almost painful to see them try to stand. There is just about as much poise or snap to their appearance as to that of the proverbial "sack of bran." Worse still, it is not natural for them to wear this air of fatigue. They have created it through weeks and months of conscious and careful application.

How can a girl go thus deliberately about destroying her personality? There is not a thing captivating about it. It is not sensible and it is not stylish. It sins alike against good appearance and good health.

The girl who would succeed in pictures cannot afford to cultivate it.

BEAUTY CHATS

The Ears

"Why do you want to write about beautifying the ears?" queried a friend who saw some notes about future Beauty Chats lying on my desk. "Why, hardly anyone shows their ears any more—it's almost impossible to let them out for public gaze. Besides, who wants beautiful ears? If you have them, all right; if you haven't, you drape your hair over them and forget them. The day of the heroine with the shell-like ear has passed, along with the gallant who whispered sweet nothings into them and wrote bad poetry about them."

I smiled at her remarks. As a matter of fact, there is little one can do to beautify the ears, except to keep them clean. If their shape is bad, one can, as my friend remarked, drape them over with hair and forget them.

However, a little massage is beneficial. And massaging the ears will often relieve a headache. Make the strokes downward behind the ear, and upward into the hair, pressing hard, then gently massage the inner part of the ears themselves. This brings blood into them, and incidentally into the brain, making the head feel better, and giving the shell-like tints our old novels used to emphasize. When the ears are pink, the blood is circulating properly through the head, when they are white, the blood has not been beating through the veins as it should.

All massage movements should press the ears against the head, not away from it. Special care should be taken of children's ears, for boys and girls with great ears standing away from their heads are objects of pity, and often, alas! of ridicule. The ears should be washed as often as the face, and the loose wax kept washed off.

Questions and Answers

Which is the best way to remove hair from under the arm? Do you advise doing it?—Fannie.

Reply:—A large order! Follow the present series of Chats closely, they are talking up a constructive course of beauty-building hints. Buy Dr. Mueller's system of exercises, and do them. Swim, walk, live out of doors.

Health and Development Aids.

Daily exercises start all of the physical processes which both the thin and the fat woman need, by causing perspiration, which keeps the pores clear; improve circulation, which feeds the muscles, and deep breathing, which feeds the lungs and purifies the blood. They make muscles grow where they languished before, thus filling in unsightly hollows in the neck and chest with healthy, firm muscle and flesh, which will soon be covered with the necessary layer of padding of fat originally intended by nature, if the proper foods are eaten meanwhile.

The starved tissues will become plump and rounded, not by massage or so-called fleshbuilding creams, but only through a conscientious and persistent course of hygienic living, daily exercise, baths, proper foods and intelligent attention to the body's needs. Breathe deeply always; make it a habit, not an exercise; keep the mouth tightly closed, chest and head high, and allow the breath to reach the lowest possible part of the lungs at each inhalation.

THE HEART OF A FRIEND

The heart of a friend! How splendidly warm
Is the heart that is true thru the stress and the storm;
The face of a friend—How it lightens the load
Of a comrade. It cheers like a light on the road.
The hand of a friend! How it shakes off the chill
Of the lone, lonely climb to the top of the hill.
Oh, treasure that's priceless,
That's true to the end,
Bright jewel of a lifetime—the Heart of a Friend.
